

Running for Office

A business owner in Virginia ran for Governor and changed the landscape of the election. A truck driver ran against the Senate President in New Jersey and only spent $150 to win. Throughout the country, candidates who advocate for fiscal responsibility, transparency, and accountability in their state government and increased economic opportunity for the people they want to represent are getting elected to office.

YOU should consider a run for office to make a difference in Massachusetts. Our state needs principled conservatives now more than ever! If you own or operate a business, please consider running for office to bring your real-world experience to the state. If you serve on municipal government and hold the line on taxes, please consider running for higher office.

Every State Representative and State Senator is up for reelection in 2022. All two hundred state legislators, the eight Governor Councilors, the five state-wide constitutional positions of Governor, Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Treasurer, and Auditor are also up. The nine Member of Congress will be up for re-election next year. Due to the once in ten-year redistricting that just took place, many are running in districts that are substantially new to them. There has NEVER been a better time for a newcomer to jump into the fray.

The General Election will be on Tuesday, November 8, 2022. The Republican and Democratic Primaries are on Tuesday, September 6, 2022. The first day candidates can obtain nomination papers to run in the Republican or Democratic primaries are on February 14, 2022. For candidates seeking state office, the nomination papers are due with the clerks on May 3 and for federal candidates they are due with the clerks on May 10.

If you are a principled conservative that wants to serve our state and hold your elected official accountable to lower taxes, less regulations and more transparency in state government, you should consider running for office in 2022.

The elections are in 2022, but the campaign starts today. To learn more about HOW to run for office, send us an email at recruiting@massfiscal.org
